

WHEN SHE MAKES MORE FARNOOSH TORABI

When it comes to her relationship,
WHEN SHE MAKES MORE,
she reports less satisfaction.

From finances to friends, career and housework,
WHEN SHE MAKES MORE,
there is more pressure to make it all work.

She is less happy
with the couple's family planning status.

WHEN SHE MAKES MORE

she is more likely to agree with the following statements:

- I would spend more time with my family but work interferes.
- I feel pressure to advance my career.
- I feel pressure to maintain my income stream.

She is less satisfied with how domestic duties are managed.

WHEN SHE MAKES MORE she is more likely to feel pressure and judgement from friends and family.

WHEN SHE MAKES MORE she is significantly more likely to be the primary decision maker when it comes to paying bills and planning for retirement.

Percentage of women who take control when she makes more: ○ when she makes less: ○

ON SALE FROM HUDSON STREET PRESS 5/1/2014

Personal finance expert and author Farnoosh Torabi teamed up with Dr. Brad Klontz, a financial psychologist and certified financial planner, to conduct an academic survey in 2013, which consisted of 1,033 heterosexual women in committed relationships. Of that sample, there was a relatively equal split between women who make more than their partners and women who make less. Eighty percent of the sample held a college degree or higher.